№27

LUTRUWITA

HIEMS

The distinctive endemic species of Tasmania's myrtle beech, sassafras and leatherwood beneath a canopy of towering King Billy, celery top & Huon Pines are captured in this candle.

A bright perfume of aniseed & sweet honey floats delicately above more robust tones of cedar and pine whilst moss & myrrh carry long notes to your nose.

Nº5

SANTALUM

HIEMS

Warm tones of sandalwood and cardamom bask in a bright winter light that's strong and beaming down on your décolletage. In the dappled shade you'll find cooling and uplifting notes of violets underfoot and a light aroma of hyacinths.

It's a seductive combination that brings waves of heat peppered with sweet relief, spellbinding you into an endless chase of satisfaction and pleasure.

Nº17

CLEMENTINA FLOREO

VER

In a field of clementine citrus trees the buzzing bees disturb the nectar in fragrant blossoms. Sunbeams warm the petals and a gentle zephyr carries their aroma to you.

The floral and citrusy notes combine with the bewitching scent of natural beeswax from Tasmanian wildflowers.

№8

J A S M I N U M

VER

The promise of Spring's leisure and joy is transmitted by the telltale aroma of the jasmine flower billowing over back fences in laneways. Stronger at night and reputedly an ancient aphrodisiac for the Persians, Greeks and Egyptians alike, the perfume brings nostalgic sentiments of happiness, youth and decadence.

This candle's aroma uses jasmine absolute from several varieties from the species including Star and Grandiflora.

№11

PIMPINELLIFOLIUM

AESTAS

Stunning wild tomatoes envelop you with the scent of their leaves taking warmth from the sun's rays- it's a summer day so divine you could consume it- or else... let it consume you.

A scented candle that smells good enough to eat will have you basking in the unusual and savoury aroma of fresh tomato leaves- at once fresh and bright yet grounded and welcoming.

№43

FICUS CARICA

AUTUMNUS

An autumn fig leaf is crushed in the hand and inhaled deeply while standing in a warm beam of golden sunlight.

The gentle aroma of bees buzzing in a nearby tree of blossoms wafts honey nectar perfume over on a delicate breeze.
